Keeping Our End Up

A comedy play about a ladies bowls team
By Mark Carey

In the village of Longfield Bishop things are not quite what they seem. The ladies' bowling club is as much a part of the establishment as the church or the pub. But as the ladies reveal the truths behind their apparently harmonious lives we see the tragedies as well as the comedy that makes them what they are.

Ursula Fewings acts as narrator, shining a little light into the dark corners. Head of the team is Ronnie Palmer, former magistrate who is losing her memory, slightly. Jan Broomfield, over-keen young school teacher obsessed by 'urnie' her tea urn. Fee McGregor who works in a solicitor's office and suffers an abusive husband. Joan Right, dinner lady, whose daughter died in an accident some years ago and who has felt herself judged by the village and by Ronnie, who preside over the enquiry, ever since.
